The Confederate Colony at Venezuela. [Correspondence of the New Orleans Picayune.]

CIUDAD BOLIVAR, GUYANA, VENEZUELA, March 23. 1867.—The grant to Dr. Price has been finally executed, and the Government has issued certificates to each gestleman of the party, recomizing him as one of the colony founded by us, and entitled to all the vast privileges of the grant. I may as well say here that the Government has distinctly notified us that no person coming here without proof satisfactory to Frederick A. Johnson, the representative of Dr. H. M. Price, at this place, will be entitled to, or put in the possession of, the privileges of the grant.

I should advise no one to come here without at least flour and bacon (to fry meat and tish) enough to last at least three months, as the rush to the mines has made everything high. Flour is there six dollars per barrel here, and much higher, I am six dollars per parrel lare, and index had informed, at the mines, and present indications look as though another California excitement is about to t ke place. Our New York Letter.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

New York, May 16, 1867. - The French theatre was more crowded than ever at the Mainice or Thursday last, by an immense concourse of spectators who had paid their money to see not only the great trage come in Lady Macbeth, but the great ex-President of the Confederate States, in a private box. Jefferson Davis has been in a private box, or in a public box in the great American theatre of life, for some time, but he did not make his appearance in the box at the French theatre as expected that morning, nor did he take his depar-whom but a moment ago I passed on Broadway, is an el lerly old gentleman of modest and unassuming demeanor, dresses plainly, I might almost say carelessly, and is notorious for almost invariably wearing a hat not only a size too large, but which seems to have done extra service. To observe him on the street no one would suspect that this old hat covers a head within which works a brain that burns with intellectual fire second in brilliancy and intensity to none; and yet when we are told that this is CHARLES O'CONOR, and note more carefully the owner of the hat, we discover a omething in the peculiar twinkle of the small but adescribably piercing eye that tells us this is the

This is certainly a nost uncourteous manner of acting toward this listinguished lady-distinguished alike for her charity and womanly virtues, as for her extraordinary artistic abilities, and the notice should most certainly have been served upon her before.

The revenue tax, which is in general rather hard apon all classes, is particularly oppressive as regards theatres and public places of amusement. The theatres are compelled to pay ton and a half per cent, on the gross receipts per night, no matter whether there be any profits or not. All of the theatrical managers are of course anxious to have the law re calco, or modified, and several months ago, Ford, the manager of Ford's Theatre in Balimore, undertook to engineer the matter, and succeded in collecting from several theatre men here and elsewhere small amounts of money with which to earry out the engineering process, but the affair ended in the verdant managers handing over their subscriptions and hearing of the matter novermore.

MAN to "agitate," but not to fight nor create a riot, the anti-Excise Law men tried the agitating rame last night by holding a meeting. There was very little agitation, however, and it was rather a la-h-in-the-pan kind of an affair. I doubt if the Jayor's plan will work well, and predict that the question will narrow itself down to beer and fight, r bear and don't fight. A tragic scene was enacted in a house in Avenue

A., a few evenings ago. An unfortunate individual named Davis had proof that Iago contended with Othello can never be obtained, that his worse-half and been unfaithful, wherefore he entered the com where she was with her paramour, and failng in the attempt to shoot the latter, shot himself in the head with his pistol, next jumped out of the window, and then drank vitriol. Strange to elate, the man is not yet dead. The name of the educer, who was not killed, but should have been.

Let us hope that we have heard the last of this Let us hope that we have near the ast of this mwise and mischerous crustide, and that honeeforth the people of the South will be approached in a more freadly and moderate temper. The majority of the committee of the Massachusetis Legislature on the liquor law make a report of the practical operation of the law, from which we extract:

The evidence before the committee, though of The evidence before the committee though of course to some extent conflicting, tended to show that in all those eities or towns where the prosecutions against open places had been the most active, an extraord nary number of secret places were started, and that more liquor and worse liquor were drunk, and that more intexication ensued. According to the report of beputy Chief of Police Savage (Amondity in 200), the relate number of places are (Appendix p. 223), the whole number of places in Boston in which lipnor was known to be so d was 1500 in 1854, and 15.5 in 1856. The number of drunken persons taken up by the police in 1854 was 6.983, while in 1866 it was 15.542, the largest numexpected that morning, nor did he take his departure for Canada as expected that afternoon, for he is still here at the New York Hotel, having been presented by indisposition, from even partaking of the hospitality of Charles O'Conor.

Speaking of Ristom and Charles O'Conor, reminds me of a circumstance I have to recerd in relation to each. As I consider O'Conor by far the greater personage of the two, let me di pose of him first. This exprandingly man, who is periaps the ablest jurist in the United States, and whom but a moment ago I passed on Broadway, is basis of the returns for January and February, it will amount to 18,192.

Rev. James A. Healey, paster of a very large Catholic Church, and visiting extensively aming the poorer classes, says (p. 191) "teat in almost every house they have liquor, and they sell to those in the house." Mayor Norcioss says that "drunkenness increases." Ex-Mayor Lincoln says "drunkenness increases." Ex-Mayor Lincoln says that "the sale of ardeat spirits and the number of drunkards have increased faster than our ropulation has increased. And without attempting to give the names even of 'the numerous witnesses who testified in regard to the present condition of things in Boston, it can be safely asserted that while the number of open places has undoubtedly somewhat diminished, all of the enheigh hotels, recognizes restaurable areas and wholesomewhat duminished, and the transplantons, graceries, restaurants, aporticeaties, and wholesale I quor dealers sell openiv, an dumense and constantly increasing number of a retire and relains? has been established, drunkenness ma increased almost in a direct ratio with the I surg of public places, and there is now more of it than at any previous time in the history of the city.

In Cambridge, Prof. Bowen says (p. 31t.) "It is as easy to buy liquor now as it is to buy bread, and it can be had, even at a greater number of places."

In Lowell, the Hon. E. B. Patch says (p. 214.) In Lowell, the Hon. E. B. Patch says (p. 244.)

"I hink the sale of liquor was never more free than it is at the prese t time. I believe that every deder sells it in the most open manner, as much as they please, and to whom they please."

In Charlestown, Judge Warren, formerly Mayor, sees (p. 185.) "I should say that intemperance did not dominish." "I understood the present United States collector to $1.1" to two hardred. enses had been granted in Charlestown the preent year." La New Bolferd, City Marshal Brownell says (p.

In Fall River, ex-Mayor Buffington says (p. 309), 'most of the pub is places of the better class that did sell, have been force. It some of them, to close, and in the winter, when the largest amount of se zones was made, the arrests for arunkeaness were the largest of any in the year."

In Wordester, ex-Mayor Lincoln says (p. 350), the law "has not substantially suppress of the said of liquor, nor diminished the cases of drunken-In Lynn, Mayor Usher says (p. 666), "I do not think there is an open bar in the city. There are said to be secret clubs, where they buy liquor by the quantity and resort to drink it."
In Springfield, the Rev. Mr. Lie says (p. 354), the sale of liquor is about as open as the doors fn Pittsfield, Judge Page says (p. 375), "intemperance has increased faster than the population. BAD EFFECTS OF SECRET SOCIETIES AMONG FREED-

Not only were the day schools crowded with children, but at night also waitesheaded octogenarans sat side by side with young men and wome in primary classes. The desir of the freedom of all ages was to learn to road and write, in ord r to ger, became, partly by the grossignoracee of ti of the leagues. Forms and ceremomes were end lessly montiplied, until at last every evening was wasted in ride dons parodies of parliamentary and Masonic forms. The worst pascions of the freedmen were appealed to and their truest friends de onneed in order, as it soon proved, that, be controlling the colored sentinent, the leader might command the influence and secure the trade of the white politicians of the State. De Challet tells us that the Gorilla need not be regarded by us as "a man and a brother."

Nothing new in theatrical line except that Hackett is holding forth at the Broadway as Fal-Hackett is hold sand blacks. It is estimated that of this aggregate, thirty thousand whites and thirty thousand blacks are Republicans. They claim that they will carry the state in the next election by twenty
